Pots & Containers:

- Use Baileys Veg and Herb straight from the bag.
- Select a clean pot or container of an appropriate size to your plant and partly fill with Baileys Veg and Herb Mix, allowing enough room to add your new plants.
- Turn your plant out of its container by inverting and giving a sharp tap. Loosen the root ball carefully and gently remove any damaged or dried out roots.

- Position your plant as desired and introduce enough. Baileys Veg and Herb Mix to fill around it. Lightly tap your container and level ensuring the mix is evenly settled but not compressed.
- After potting or planting give your plants a good watering. From then on regular watering is required and this should be done early in the morning if possible to reduce evaporation. Do not overwater your container plants, a simple gauge as to the plant's need is to inspect and feel the soil and water only when the topsoil feels dry.
- To maintain healthy plants, repot into a larger container of fresh mix at regular intervals. Plants that need potting on will have a healthy mass of densely matted roots making up the entire root ball.
- Ideally use up Baileys Veg and Herb Mix all in one use and get fresh material for the next job. If re-using remember to seal your bag well in storage to avoid contamination.

Raised Beds and Vegetable Patches:

- Distribute approximately 10 to 15 cm of Baileys Veg and Herb Mix over your existing soil. Dig into the top 20 cm of soil and water well. Level off the soil with a garden rake and plant seeds and seedlings as desired. Water thoroughly.
